Dear John,

I reviewed these courses and see no significant overlap between these and graduate courses offered in the College of Nursing. Let me know if there is any other way that I can support your development of the DSW.

Good morning Marlaine,

The School of Social Work is in the process of seeking approval for the Doctor of Social Work degree.

I am attaching some course syllabi and would be enormously grateful if your office could quickly peruse them to ensure that they are not duplicates of courses that are offered in your programs. I doubt that they are; but we want to cover all our bases.

Would this be possible?

We are hoping to forward these syllabi and your comments to the GPC for their March 18 meeting.

We greatly appreciate your help.

All good regards,

John.

DSW Program Mission

The DSW program provides doctoral-level practitioners with educational experiences that will allow them to engage in advanced clinical social work practice, conduct advanced clinical research, teach evidence-based practice courses, and assume leadership roles in the social work profession. Upon completion, DSW graduates will be able to:

- Integrate social work, social, and behavioral sciences with other disciplines as the basis for the highest level of evidence-based social work practice.
- Demonstrate professionalism, leadership, ethical principles, and scientific integrity in advanced social work practice, education, and research.
- Provide collaborative leadership in the development of social work evidence-based practice models and standards of care for diverse populations.
- Generate client, systems, practice, and outcomes research.
- Analyze theory, empirical research, and other evidence to guide improvements in social work practice.
- Utilize information systems and technology to enhance social work education and practice.

Course Description

This course is designed to prepare students for an array of social work education positions (including undergraduate, graduate, continuing education, and agency-based education). Students will learn how to make use of evidence-based clinical social work practices for curriculum design, course design, course delivery, and evaluation. Students will examine the educational standards (EPAS) of the Council on Social Work Education (CSWE) and learn ways to help BSW and MSW students develop the competencies identified in these standards. CSWE is the accrediting body for social work education at the BSW and MSW levels.

Relevance to Educational Program

This course supports the mission of the DSW program by providing doctoral students with the knowledge, skills, ethics, and self-awareness needed to integrate social work, social, educational, and behavioral sciences in their roles as educators. This course will prepare doctoral students to be leaders in social work education: developing evidence-based educational materials and learning activities; inspiring students to maximize their knowledge, skills, self-awareness, and potential as social work professionals; and incorporating ethics, research, and best practices in all stages of the social work education process.

Course Objectives

Upon successful completion of this course, students will be able to:

- Critically analyze the history, mission, values, research, and practices of social work education.
- Understand and apply various approaches to social work education, including adult learning, experiential learning, case-based learning, mentoring, motivational support, and online education.
- Analyze ethical issues in the context of various social work education roles.
- Develop course curricula, syllabi, and educational experiences that support the acquisition of social work competencies as defined by the Council on Social Work Education (including the use of lecture, discussion, experiential exercises, online communication, field education activities).
- Identify and apply specific educational strategies to support the integration of social work theory, knowledge, values, skills, and self-awareness in social work clinical practice.
- Use research to define, design, monitor, and evaluate the outcomes of social work education at various system levels (for particular students, assignments, examinations, courses, and BSW or MSW programs).
- Critically appraise their own teaching styles and educational competencies, and develop plans for ongoing professional development.

Learning Environment

This class includes both real-time classroom and online class environments. The student is a co-creator of the learning experience and environment. This class has been designed to provide knowledge and access to resources that will serve as a springboard for class collaboration and group projects. The course may include recorded lectures using voice-over PowerPoint, discussion blogs, reading assignments, assignments involving social media, online activities, and online group presentations. Students will take an active role in their learning, including presentations, group exercises and discussions. The instructor will act as a source of support, resources, coaching, ideas, and encouragement.

In addition to in-class and online class experiences, students will participate in a practicum designed to provide students with an opportunity to conceptualize, develop, and implement educational design and delivery in a real-life social work education context. A teaching mentor will be assigned to oversee and assist with the various components of the practicum, including syllabus construction, developing competence-based learning objectives, designing learning activities, implementing learning activities, evaluating student development, and managing ethical and other challenging issues with students. Students will also use this DSW course as a seminar to share and work through issues with other students in their cohort.

Course Assignments and Grading

The instructor and each student will negotiate a teaching experience that will form part of the course expectations (e.g., students will be involved in teaching activities in the BSW or MSW program with the FAU School of Social Work, continuing professional education, or another program as agreed upon).

The course will take students through various education phases and activities, including course development, lectures, assignments, small group activities, examinations, grading, integration of knowledge and practice, field practica, and course/instructor evaluations. This will help students prepare for their teaching experience, linking the theory and practice of social work education. The designated mentor will attend classes led by the students and provide individualized feedback. The classes will also be video recorded for inclusion in the student's teaching portfolio.

Each of the following assignments is designed to build upon the previous assignments.

Assignment 1 – Course Syllabus (Due week 6)

The professor will work with each DSW student to determine an appropriate course and mentor to partner with for the practicum experience (based on learning interests, needs, goals, and availability of course opportunities). If two DSW students are assigned to the same course, they may submit this first assignment individually or as a pair. The goals of this assignment are to learn how to develop and enhance courses. Each student (or pair of students) will develop and submit an 8 to 12-page paper that critiques the current course syllabus, including an appraisal of the following components:

- Whether the syllabus includes all required components (as per FAU and CSWE policies), and if not, what needs to be added
- How effectively the program mission, course objectives, and course activities are integrated
- Suggestions for revising the course objectives
- Suggestions for additional teaching and learning activities

- Suggestions for the course bibliography (additional textbooks, scholarly articles, or other resources that students can use to support their learning)
- Inspirational statements that could be added to the course syllabus
- A critique of the schemes used for grading (evaluation)

Criteria for evaluation: accurately identifies required components of the syllabus and whether they have been covered in an appropriate manner; clearly identifies the strengths and needs for improvement regarding the integration of program mission, course objectives, and course activities (focusing on at least one course objective for improvement); suggested course objectives are specific, relevant, competence-based, and inspirational; suggested teaching activities are evidence-based, relevant, and creative; provides at least four suggestions for the bibliography which are relevant, current, and scholarly additions filling gaps or enhancing the current syllabus; adds or revises at least one paragraph of the syllabus to ensure it is inspirational to the students; provides a balanced critique of the schemes used for grading, including suggestions for addressing any major concerns.

Assignment 2 – Instructional Design and Implementation (Due week 13)

Each student will design and implement the equivalent of two 3-hour classes. The exact nature and extent of this practicum experience will depend on the types of educational opportunities available, including online teaching, as well as the needs of the instructor teaching the course. Both the professor for this DSW course and the mentor for the practicum experience will need to approve a learning plan proposed by the student. The learning plan should include:

- The DSW student's learning goals and objectives (learning objectives should be specific competencies, teaching behaviors, or skills)
- The dates of one or two classes when the student will observe the mentor teaching
- The topics the DSW student will be responsible for covering, as well as how they relate to the overall course objectives
- The specific classes that the DSW student will be responsible for (including dates, in-class or online format)
- The types of teaching and learning activities that the DSW student will be using
- Any additional teaching activities that the student plans to learn (e.g., meeting with students outside class, grading assignments, or other optional teaching activities)
- A list of 3 to 6 evidence-based learning resources that the DSW student will use to inform the content and process of teaching.

Develop a lesson plan for each class session you will teach (minimum of two, 2.5-3 contact hours each). The plan should include the session topic, educational objectives, outline, lecture notes, and planned educational/instructional vehicles. Identify how your class session contributes to the course objectives (esp., competencies, practice behaviors), and builds on material learned in prior classes. Discuss the lesson plan with the mentor at least one week prior to each class, soliciting feedback that you can incorporate into your lesson plan and implementation.

Develop at least one method for evaluating your teaching in each of the two classes (online survey, in-class evaluation tool, focus group, or other creative means of evaluation that fits with your own learning goals/objectives).

For each class that you lead/facilitate, arrange for video equipment to record your teaching. Upload a 30-minute segment of your teaching to the Internet (e.g., drop box, Google docs) and share access to the segment with the professor for this DSW course for feedback.

After each class, prepare a self-assessment of your teaching, including an assessment of the quality of your preparation, teaching styles, teaching strengths, teaching development needs, clarity, presence, engagement of students, and ability to manage challenging issues (e.g., regarding values, ethics, diversity, disruptions, students with special needs). Your self-assessment should incorporate feedback from your DSW professor, course mentor, and students.

Assignment 3 – Teaching Portfolio (Due week 15)

A teaching portfolio is a collection of materials that demonstrate one's competencies and skills as an educator. For the purposes of this class, the portfolio will be used to help you reflect upon your strengths and needs as a developing social work educator. You may also use the portfolio (or parts of it) as a tool to demonstrate your capacities to future employers as you enter the job market. Your portfolio will contain:

- A statement of your educational philosophy and teaching style (incorporating feedback from your DSW professor, practicum mentor, and findings from at least one teaching styles inventory)
- Teaching materials that you developed or adapted for classes (e.g., PowerPoint/Prezi presentations, online modules, descriptions of classroom activities).
- Student evaluations from the classes you led (with no information identifying particular students)
- Videos of your teaching (from Assignment 2)
- Self-assessment (from Assignment 2, plus revisions as appropriate)
- Teaching interests
- Plans for fostering or enhancing specific teaching competencies.

Criteria for evaluation: clear statement of educational philosophy and teaching style, integrating pedagogical theory and feedback from various sources; clarity, relevance, and creativity of the teaching materials; inclusion of student evaluations, videos, and self assessment (these materials are graded under Assignment 2, so they there is no further evaluation other than whether they are included in the portfolio); statement of teaching interests is substantiated by past teaching and practice experiences, strengths, goals, and motivations; plans for ongoing professional development build on strengths, while addressing learning needs and future teaching interests.

Assignment 4 – Class Participation

Class participation will be evaluated based on ability to demonstrate behaviors expected of a professional social work educator: demonstrates respect for the dignity and worth of others, comes prepared for classes (with readings, notes, questions, rested, centered), completes assignments in a prompt and professional manner, attends all classes, comes to class on time (or early) and stays for entire class, schedules meetings with mentor and takes primary responsibility for preparing for teaching, actively participates in class discussions and exercises, and follows NASW Code of Ethics (2008).

WEIGHTING FOR ASSIGNMENTS:

- Assignment 1 – Course Syllabus 20%
- Assignment 2 – Instructional Design and Implementation 50%
- Assignment 3 – Teaching Portfolio 20%
- Assignment 4 – Class Participation 10%

The grading scale for this course is as follows:

93 – 100% = A	73 – 76% = C
90 – 92% = A-	70 – 72% = C-
87 – 89% = B+	67 – 69% = D+
83 – 86% = B	63 – 66% = D
80 – 82% = B-	60 – 62% = D-
77 – 79% = C+	0 – 59% = F

Definition of Grades:

A = significantly exceeds assignment/performance expectations (evidence of critical thinking, quality and quantity of research, and analysis that resulted in work additional to that set forth in the assignment directions

B = Assignment/overall performance in course meets all the requirements with evidence of critical thinking, evidence of research effort, and analysis (i.e. coherence and integration of ideas);

C = Average. Assignment/performance meets all the requirements but lacks evidence of in depth thinking and analysis and lacks evidence of research from professional journals or recent or influential books;

D = There are important gaps in the assignment both in terms of requirements and critical thinking and analysis

F = Performance not meet standards to merit a passing grade.

CODE OF ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Students at Florida Atlantic University are expected to maintain the highest ethical standards. Academic dishonesty, including cheating and plagiarism, is considered a serious breach of these ethical standards, because it interferes with the University mission to provide a high quality education in which no student enjoys an unfair advantage over any other. Academic dishonesty is also destructive of the University community, which is grounded in a system of mutual trust and places high value on personal integrity and individual responsibility. Harsh penalties are associated with academic dishonesty. For more information, see <http://www.fau.edu/regulations/chapter4/4.001> Code of Academic Integrity.pdf
