VIRTUAL RESEARCH IN ACTION

Heavy alcohol consumption and opioid overdose rates continue to increase in the U.S. and social workers provide approximately 70% of the behavioral health care in the U.S.

Joseph Bartholomew, Ph.D., licensed clinical social worker and clinical addiction counselor, studies how social workers' perceptions of substance use disorders impact medication-assisted treatment acceptance.

His talk will address:

- Social stigma and stigma types
- Factors that influence social workers' attitudes toward substance use disorders
- The need for increased addiction education in health care

Double Stigma: Addiction and Recovery

How do Social Workers' Perceptions of Substance Use Disorders Impact Medication-assisted Treatment Acceptance?

Presented by Joseph Bartholomew, Ph.D., MSW, LCSW, assistant professor, College of Social Work and Criminal Justice
